WILSON BACKING OF COX SINCERE, WRITER ASSERTS

President Looks Upon Nominee as Young Progressive of Party and Asked No Personal Indorsement.

BY DAVID LAWRENCE.
(Special Correspondent of The News Scimitar.)

COLUMBUS, O., July 20.—Gov. Cox's conference with President Wilson opens the Democratic campaign. Republican eyes it reveals the Democratic nominee a partner in the sins of Wilson democracy. To democracy, tacticians it makes the Ohio governor a partner in the virtues of Wilsonian idealism, best expressed perhaps in the league of nations.

But, inside the Democratic party, where the San Francisco convention had opened a few old wounds in the contest between the reactionary and progressive wings of the party, there is a redoubled interest in what sort of an estimate really was established between the president and the Democratic standard-bearer.

From stanch Wilson men in Washington, who usually are accurate in information on White House politics, and from Franklin D. Roosevelt, and other members of the party, with whom the writer made the journey from Washington, these impressions of the White House conference were drawn: First and foremost, the president showed plainly his pleasure that the Democratic party had selected a young and vigorous champion of the principles for which he himself had fought in public life. Mr. Wilson's attitude was that of a man who was turning over the leadership of the party to a successor, who, he felt, was worthy of the job.

Second, not a word was said by the president concerning the management of the campaign or the personal qualities of the managers, nor did the president ask for the perpetuation of his policies. The whole conversation was of a general character, with the league of nations as the principal subject.

As a matter of fact, there was little now to be gone over. Although the public hasn't perhaps observed it, Gov. Cox has been in rather close touch with the White House for many months and was in frequent communication by telephone with Secretary Tumulty while the San Francisco convention was in progress.

Product of Newer School.

The president has always looked upon Gov. Cox as one of the younger progressives in the Democratic party who would be depended upon to carry out forward-looking principles. Gov. Cox as the product of the newer school of Democratic statesmen and as a splendid refutation of the argument that the Democratic party doesn't develop able executives.

Third, Gov. Cox pledged the president his wholehearted support for the league of nations. This may cost some anti-Wilson votes in the Democratic ranks, but the Ohio governor, even before his nomination, made it very clear that he stood for the ratification of the peace treaty with such reservations as would not impair the independence of the United States or interfere with its constitutional rights. Gov. Cox does not intend to go back on what he said before he was nominated, simply because certain influences more or less hostile to the Wilson administration were effective in gaining for him the nomination at San Francisco.

Fourth, the indorsement by Gov. Cox of the league of nations with reservations does not mean his approval of what has happened in the last seven years and a half years of Democratic administration at Washington. He is a free agent. His conference at the White House imposed no obligations upon him. He entered into no arrangement with the present officeholders from cabinet officers down shall be retained.

Not a word about the Wilson policies was spoken except the league of nations, and the great significance of the White House meeting is that the president himself wanted no indorsement of anything but the principles of the Democratic platform. He asked for no approval of personnel. And the inference remains that Gov. Cox can at the proper time announce his intention of riding efficiency, whether it may have taken root in federal offices, and promise a new deal with a new personnel without particularly offending the White House.

Fifth, Gov. Cox intends to go westward and traverse some of the same ground which Mr. Wilson covered in his trip last September in behalf of the league of nations. The Democrats in the West want to know how sincerely and enthusiastically Gov. Cox is for the league of nations.

Cox Must Go West.

The conference at the White House was designed to start the process of uniting the Democratic party behind their candidate. Woodrow Wilson will endeavor to transmit the strength he has in the Western states to Gov. Cox, but the latter must go West to help complete the conversion.

The East may not be especially excited about the league of nations, but Gov. Cox knows that it will be an issue in the West and he is going out to champion that cause the very first thing. By the time he has campaigned for a few weeks there will be no doubt in the minds of all Democrats where he stands, and there will be plenty of time for him to take up the program of constructive administration which he means to pledge the people in the coming campaign.

It is started out with the emphasis on domestic questions, he would not quickly draw to his side those Democrats of the West who placed transcendent importance in the league of nations. When he has covered that to the satisfaction of the Westerners, he can approach the other parts of the Democratic platform in detail and tackle the question of administrative efficiency and personnel in government.

His speech of acceptance will, of course, embrace both foreign and domestic questions, but the likelihood is that when Gov. Cox opens his campaign in the West, he will make clear his position on the all-important matter of international policy which he would follow if elected for the next four years.

YOU ASK WHO WON WAR? MIKE O'GRADY ASSISTED

DETROIT, Mich., July 20. (By International News Service.)—A good marine can do anything. Prefacing his remarks with this "jatherness" adage, Michael O'Grady poked his head into the forecabin of a steamer at the Detroit dock and invited the crew individually and collectively to step out and contradict. Most of them were inclined to attempt to disprove O'Grady's boast, and came at him.

He floored seven of them. An officer was called and O'Grady bent a marlinpike over his head. Combining effort of all around finally subdued him, and he was sober enough to explain to the judge.

"I was a marine in France, judge, for three and one-half years. He rubbed his black eye and sighed. 'I'm tired of this life and started something. I craved excitement.'"

"The crew tells me, O'Grady," the judge said, "that there is no doubt in their minds about who won the war now. I admire you as a marine, but as a disturber of the peace, you are worth a $10 fine to the city."

NEGRO EXODUS SEEN IN GEORGIA CENSUS

ALBANY, N. Y., July 20. (By International News Service.)—The seriousness of the negro migration from South Georgia is beginning to be visualized here as the returns from the 1920 census are published.

Figures on Quitman and Clay counties show the former has lost more than 25 per cent of its population in 10 years and the latter 15 per cent. It is known that no serious emigration of the white population has occurred in the last decade, and the only explanation is found in negroes leaving in large numbers.

Work Progresses On Catholic Club

Work on the Catholic club building, being erected at Third street and Adams avenue, is progressing satisfactorily, according to officials. The work of raising the buildings at present occupying the property will be completed by September 1, when the actual construction will begin. It is stated that $1,000 shares of stock and bonds are received not infrequently, and that the Catholics of Memphis are showing a wonderful support of the proposition.

When it was found that 30 feet more property was needed to conform with plans drawn, the extra money was forthcoming without any public subscription of any sort.

Middle Age at 35 or 60?

Physician Explains Why Lack Of Iron In the Blood Saps the Strength and Vitality and Often Makes Men and Women Look and Feel Old Before Their Time.

By Dr. Ferdinand King, New York Physician and Medical Author

Signs of old age are plainly to be seen in many a man and woman who ought still to be enjoying the rugged health and activity of the early prime of life. Yet often the real cause of this decline is nothing more than lack of iron in the blood and it is surprising how quickly these conditions are frequently corrected once the right kind of iron is supplied.

I am constantly coming across cases in my practice where people not yet 40 show much of the nervousness, lack of energy and general run-down condition which might possibly be expected to come twenty years later in life while others at 60 may still be young in feeling, mentally alert with steady nerves and strong bodies.

Whether we have health and long life is often a question which each one must determine for himself. Signs of old age are largely due to a deposit of waste matter in the blood vessels and cells of the body. Without plenty of strength from iron the blood is utterly lacking in the

WHY WOMEN ARE PARTICULAR

Every woman of smart appearance who desires popularity and wins attention of interested admirers by her personal charm—has acquired her smart appearance by certain well-defined methods of care and attention to details, without which one's popularity amounts to naught.

Women of smart appearance carry their rouge and face powders as well as their hair preparations in their vanity case at all times, but it is hardly possible to include in this list hair preparations, yet the hair must have the same attention as the armpits, the skin and nails, if milady would be correct in every detail. The hair is usually the barometer to correctness and smart appearance, and if through lack of care, the hair begins to show streaks of gray, becomes faded and lifeless, it casts its shadow over other details detracting from one's general appearance and up-to-dateness. Q-Ban Hair Color restores the natural color to Women's Hair Needs. Secure a bottle, keep it on your dressing table, use it as you dress, and you have completed your toilet needs.
